A voice for aether

Aether gives independent creatives a calmer relationship with money. The banking experience brings incoming payments, invoice tracking, and everyday spending into one focused workspace. An ember-orange payment card sits at the heart of the identity, surrounded by warm neutrals, precise typography, and sculptural layers that suggest movement without visual noise. The website makes the product tangible through a live currency selector, clear account features, and a concise view of freelance cash flow. Every detail supports a simple purpose: helping people spend less time organizing their finances and more time doing the work they love.
