Design direction

A bright coastal menu on a deep sea-blue stage: bold Tahoe titles, rounded horizontal menu selectors, clear price-aligned columns and an overhead photographic plate. Tomato red brings warmth to the table-planning section, with navy text and white surfaces keeping the food in focus.

A voice for Salt

Salt is a coastal neighborhood kitchen with a generous table and a menu shaped by the season. Its website puts a bright white menu against deep sea blue, pairing clear dish names, prices and ingredient notes with overhead food photography. Rounded menu controls make dinner, lunch and drinks easy to explore. A bold Tahoe wordmark and scallop-shell symbol give the identity a lively coastal character, while serif dish-group titles make the menu easy to scan. Kitchen photographs continue the story, and a table planner brings the evening's practical details together. The experience puts appetite, good company and clear information at the center.
